Supervisor president resigns after primary defeat

BY DENA BISNETTE

Hancock County Board of Supervisors President A.A. Kellar Wednesday resigned following his 1,039 to 893 vote defeat Tuesday in the Democratic Primary by Pearlinton businessman Ronald Cuevas. Kellar, who is Beat Two supervisor, called a 1 p.m. press conference to announce the resignation Wednesday afternoon.

The board, which had recessed Monday on a day-to-day basis in order to hear any objections to the county property tax roles, was reconvened for the purpose of approving Kellar's resignation and did so "with regret."

Also present were Chancery Clerk Michael Necaise and the board attorney, Gerald Gex.

The only spectators at the conference were members of Kellar's family and outgoing Justice Court Judge Barbara Frierson.

"I'm presently serving my 37th year in political office and I want to thank my family for sticking with me," Kellar stated.

"It has been a privilege to serve and I have no regrets."

"The people have spoken," the supervisor said.

Travirca, as the new president, had the option of serving as the county's representative on the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District Board or appointing someone else to do so.

He appointed Beat Three Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner with approval from the other board members.

Gex, who said the board has 10 days to decide what to do about replacing Kellar, has been asked to research the matter.

The board may call a special meeting based on Gex's legal recommendations once the research is completed.

Beat One Supervisor Bert Courge, who arrived after Kellar had made his statement and left, reacted with surprise.

"I didn't know...I just met him on the stairs. I've been on this board for 12 years with him and I have great respect for him, but there is a lot of pressure involved in this job and I can't blame him for taking his retirement," Courge said.

"He has been here a long time and he endured a lot of that pressure over the years."

Kellar's opponent, Ronald Cuevas, himself as he entered the courthouse Tuesday night to await, then listened as only a few boxes were announced before turning his attention to an air conditioner that refused to start.

Perniclaro received 1,036 votes to start.

Enhanced 911 service passes 4276 to 953

BY DENA BISNETTE

Hancock County voters have approved Enhanced 911 emergency telephone service.

The referendum, on the first page of Tuesday's ballot, passed 4,276 votes for to 953 votes against, according to unofficial totals.

The Enhanced 911 emergency service is similar to 911 emergency service, with some exceptions.

In 911 service, the caller must provide his location before assistance can be dispatched.

With the enhanced system, a computer provides emergency service dispatchers with the address and telephone number of the location from which the call is being placed.

The board of supervisors approved a referendum on the enhanced service last year at the request of Bay-Waveland-Hancock County Civil Defense Director Robert Boudin, but found that a local and private bill would be necessary before the referendum could be authorized.

However, legislation passed during the 1987 session enabled any county in Mississippi to call an Enhanced 911 referendum.

The Hancock County referendum was placed on the Democratic and Republican primary ballots because the Nov. 3 general election ballot is scheduled to include 10 state resolutions, Hancock County Election Commission Secretary Charles Gottschalk said.

Board has 10 days to name replacement

"There are a lot of things now coming before this board that will take some hard decisions and my heart is with them," he said of the other board members.

"It has been a privilege to serve with them, with this whole administration, but there comes a time when you have to look after yourself. Really, the people have done me favor."

"There have been a lot of controversies but I never rode the fence on issues and I always voted my convictions."

Kellar finished his statement by saying the resignation would be effective that day, shook hands with the other board members, and left with his family.

The board agreed to appoint Beat Five Supervisor James Travirca, who had been serving as board vice-president, as president, with Beat Four Supervisor Sam Perniclaro succeeding Travirca as vice-president.

Travirca said he had been on the board for 16 years and Kellar had been president for most of that time.

"He will be a very hard man to replace, I can tell you that, but I will do the best I can to be a good president for this board," Travirca said.

Perniclaro said he hated to see Kellar leave but that he had asked him not to run again for health reasons.

"He told me he didn't want to turn the job over to just anybody," Perniclaro said.

"I think the world of Mr. Kellar. He was really sincere and he knew more about county government than the four of us put together."

Ladner said he wished that Kellar had finished his term, which would have ended in January.

"I feel he has done a real good job as far as serving Hancock County as an elected official for 37 years and all I can say is that I wish him and a Pearlinton resident who operates Cuevas Grocery and Hardware, offered no comment on the resignation.

The night before, a few seconds after the returns for the Catahoula precinct gave Cuevas the margin he needed to win, the candidate said, "This vote indicates that Hancock County is ready to move in a new direction."

"I am very pleased with the tremendous support I have received in this election, and the support indicates I have general support throughout the county."

According to unofficial returns, Cuevas led in four of Beat Two's six precincts and Kellar led in two.

Three of the four remaining incumbent supervisors wound up in run-offs with one taking a landslide victory.

Perniclaro, despite an indictment on charges of bribery, mail fraud and conspiracy in Operation Pretense, predicted a win for Sheriff reelected in primary

BY DENA BISNETTE

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson, despite two opponents, has proved to be the Democratic primary's landslide candidate.

Unofficial totals showed Peterson as having more than the percentage needed to win without a run-off, with a total of 6,403 votes to 1,611 for Frank McNeill and 1,031 for Ray Murphy.

"I'm excited. I'm overjoyed about the landslide," Peterson said Tuesday night while some of the latest returns were still being announced. I didn't expect this big a victory."

"I campaigned really, really hard and I feel most people think the sheriff's office is doing a good job. What most people I talked to stated to me was, why should we change? They seemed satisfied," the sheriff added.

McNeill said he had enjoyed his campaign and felt that he had made a good showing for his first political race.

"I enjoyed every minute of it, in the cities and in the country. I met a lot of nice people while I was campaigning."

Murphy commented early in the countdown that he did not expect to take many of the city boxes but felt he would do better in the country.

Circuit Clerk candidate Pam Metzler, who is presently serving as deputy clerk, had no incumbent to face and carried her race against two challengers by getting 4,749 votes to 2,225 for Larry Peterson and 1,978 for Madeline Prendergast.

A contingent of her relatives and friends were there displaying their blue "Metzler for Circuit Clerk" T-shirts.

Also winning without a run-off was Superintendent of Education Terrell Randolph, who sat on the floor tallying votes because there were no seats left in the courthouse boardroom.

Randolph finished with 2,700 votes against 2,130 for Bay Junior High Principal W.J. Cameron.

"I'm anxious to go back to work and get down to some serious educational business," Randolph said.

"I want to congratulate Terry Randolph on a good campaign. I'm definitely pleased with how I've done," said Cameron, who has never run for office before.

Chancery Clerk E. Michael Necaise also got out of the primary without a run-off, defeating Ronald LaFontaine 6,810 to 2,159.

Necaise said he planned a regular workday on Wednesday, "but I will always be mindful of the trust and confidence the people have shown in supporting me."

Coroner Harold Stiglet beat his opponent Lugs O. Necaise 6,510 to

Hancock voters pick Mabus for governor

Incumbent State Auditor, Ray Mabus has emerged as Hancock County's favorite gubernatorial candidate in the Democratic Primary.

The top three in the field were Mabus with 3,571 votes, former governor Bill Waller with 1,494 and incumbent State Attorney General Ed Pittman with 1,117.

Glendora businessman Mike Sturdivant finished next with 1,046, followed by John Arthur Eaves with 1,005, Maurice Dantin with 600, Gilbert Fountain with 70 and H.R. Toney with 27.

Incumbent Brad Dye, unopposed for Lieutenant Governor, got 7,851 votes.

Incumbent Dick Molpus was the local favorite for secretary of state, receiving 6,123 votes, followed by Roy Jordan with 1,359 and Steve Turney with 1,064.

State Auditor, a race without an incumbent, was led by Al Gary with 2,322 votes, followed by Pete Johnson with 2,200, Ronnie Robertson with 1,539, Michael Raff with 1,234 and Jerry Williams with 1,079.

Marshall Bennett was the leader in the state treasurer race with 4,362 votes. His opponents, Bill Gilbert and Guy P. Land, received 2,247 and 1,760 votes respectively.

Mike Moore of Jackson County received the most votes for attorney general with 6,163. Dale Danks had 1,603 and Liz Gilchrist had 1,006.

Incumbent Bob Joiner had 5,066 votes for southern district highway commissioner and Harrison County's Billy McDonald had 3,791.

Incumbent Jim Buck Ross remained the favorite for agriculture commissioner, taking 5,122 votes while his opponents Bill Bost had 1,204 and Haskel Patterson had 2,244.

Two unopposed candidates, George Dale for insurance commissioner and Lynn Havens for southern district public service commissioner, had 7,634 and 7,861 votes respectively.

In the Republican primary, all of the state candidates were unopposed.

She will dance from midnight till dawn in competition with a wealthy white Brazilian entrepreneur from Ipanema.

Compretta wins in House race

BY DENA BISNETTE

A race between two former state representatives has resulted in a Hancock County victory for J.P. Compretta.

Compretta defeated Earl "Buck" Ladner 4,824 votes to 2,331 votes Tuesday to win Hancock County's share of the District 122 seat, according to unofficial totals.

In District 108, which includes the Leetown, Flat Top, Crane Creek and Standard precincts, Howard L. Ladner won with 871 votes, Curtis Holston was second with 347 and Sherman J. Gaspard was third with 143.

In the State Senate, District 46 Gene Taylor was unopposed but got 7,439 votes anyway.

In District 47, which includes Leetown and Crane Creek, Margaret "Wootale" Tate of Piquette led with 207 votes, followed by Sherry Morris with 183, Greg Mitchell with 124, Lawrence Holliday with 110, and James W. Owen Sr. with 65.

Incumbent District Attorney Cono Caranna lost to challenger Glenn Cannon, 5,365 to 3,661.

While votes for Compretta came in, his predecessor Walter James Phillips, who retired after the 1987 session, stood among the spectators and predicted the win, commenting that he felt Compretta would make his best showing in the county precincts.

In the only Republican race, Marc A. Chetta polled four votes and Mark Formy took one in the Senate District 47 race.

Magazine begins hunt for subscribers

The University of Mississippi Center for the Study of Southern Culture is looking for subscribers for its new gospel music magazine.

After some four years of work, Ole Miss, in conjunction with Baylor University, is preparing to publish Rejoice! The Gospel Music Magazine. The 52-page quarterly will debut this year, said Dr. William Ferris, director of the Center for the Study of Southern Culture.

This summer, the magazine is launching a campaign for subscribers that will eventually include a mailing to some 50,000 gospel music enthusiasts.

Subscriptions to the magazine are $11.95 for four issues. Persons who are interested should send their name and address to Rejoice!, The Center for the Study of Southern Culture, The University of Mississippi, University, Ms 39677.

Subscribers do not need to send any money now, since bills will be sent closer to the magazine's publication. The first issue of the magazine could be published as early as November, depending on response to the subscription offers.

Dr. Ferris also urged church leaders and gospel promoters who are planning summer and fall gospel concerts to contact the Center so that the magazine can be represented at the events.

Initial funding for the magazine has come from Baylor University and the L.J. Skaggs and Marcy C. Skaggs Foundation of Oakland, Calif.

For more information, contact Connie White Mills, Rejoice! Publication Coordinator, The Center for the Study of Southern Culture, University, Ms 39677, (601) 232-5993.

"Cool as a cucumber" was the ultimate compliment in my growing up days. Wouldn't you like to be that cool these hotter than hot days? Well, the cucumber has been known through the ages as a coolant.

There's an old, old story, one of the countless stories about food and such, that tells of a thirsty shepherd, wandering over a dusty plain in the Northwest part of India, three thousand or more years ago, who stumbled over a greenish gourd of sorts. This gourd miraculously, had not yet been parched by the sun. Picking it up, he remembered, the shepherd was hungry and thirsty enough to try anything that seemed even remotely edible—he reveled in the juicy crunch of the cucumber and the "cool" of it, or whatever words he used to describe it!

We've been crunching and munching happily throughout the centuries since, haven't we? But, human nature being what it is and all there were still stumbling blocks in the way of the cucumber's acceptance.

Though well known as the thirst quencher, the cucumber was slow to work its way into other cuisines. Early cookbooks, in this approval, said that cucumbers had little nutritional value. Calorie-conscious diners of today are happy to munch to their hearts' content on cucumbers, as they are so low in calories that you can eat yourself stuffed without gaining so much as an ounce!

The old recipe books went on to say, page after page, that the bitter peel must be removed—it was bitter then but skins now are so thin that we often eat them. For my part, I seldom remove the peel.

When I want to be a bit on the fancy side, when I'm making cucumber sandwiches for tea or cocktail time, I score the cucumber lengthwise with the tines of a fork, to make scallops of sorts, then slice and proceed.

I like cucumbers, thinly sliced, in salads. I like them also cooked in various ways, but one of the best ways that I like them is an old, old, way, or rather, two old ways, from recipes handed down in my family for many years. First, here's:

SOUR CUCUMBERS

(NOT an appetizing name, but that's what Great-Great-Somebody-Or-Other called it, so there!)

2 large cucumbers
1 medium onion, chopped fine
¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ Cup vinegar

Pepper, salt, minced parsley
Peel the cucumbers (I don't like this in an old recipe) Cut into quarter-inch slices, and slimmer in lightly salted water (just enough to cover) for 12 to 15 minutes, then drain and set aside.

Heat the butter in a saucepan over low heat, then add the onion and cook ever so gently until tender. Add the vinegar and cucumbers, and cook for five minutes or so over medium heat, as the vinegar slowly cooks away. Add pepper, and salt to taste, and sprinkle with the parsley. (Four servings.)

This recipe, so I've been told by family cooks, originated with relatives from France, who had come to the Carolinas instead of Louisiana and the Gulf Coast. The touch of vinegar gives a piquant taste. (These same early cooks stuffed and baked and creamed the cucumbers at other times.)

And, for a delicious summertime salad, here's:

SOUR CREAM CUCUMBERS

(There are other more lengthy recipes, but my simple formula: Just mix sour cream and chopped parsley with marinated cucumber slices.)

There are so many other ways to use cucumbers, all delicious! If you've an oversupply, or just want new ways, call me for chilled cucumber soup; crispy slices or whatever, for, after all, there are many readers who don't like cucumbers, so I can't take up too much more space!

Sewage collection system for new Bay developments to be studied

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
The Bay St. Louis City Council Tuesday authorized an engineering study of ways to decrease the number of sewage lift stations in the Woods and Bay Cove Developments.

Mayor Victor J. Frankiewicz recommended Brown Engineers, Inc. of Gulfport to conduct the pump station analysis so the city would not have several stations to maintain when the streets and utility services in these areas are turned over to the city.

Three alternatives will be considered, one of which would allow a single, large lift station to be constructed and pump sewage at a manhole on Felicite Street.

"To have a single station would save a tremendous amount of operating cost including electricity, spare parts and maintenance," Frankiewicz said.

"It also makes the system more reliable because you have fewer mechanical stations to keep running," he added.

The engineering study is expected to cost $3,750 and should be completed within 45 days.

Also at the meeting the board discussed a budget development schedule for the fiscal year 1988 which must be adopted by Sept. 15.

Budget requests by department heads and other city agencies are expected to be submitted to Frankiewicz next week for consolidation.

A hearing will be scheduled after council workshops and review of the budget.

Millage rates will be set and ad valorem taxes levied after the budget is adopted.

The council also accepted a bid from Williams Paving Company of Gulfport for $43,493 for a paving project.

Included in the paving is Eighth Street from Turner to the city limits; Bismark Street and Ninth Street from Suebe to Turner Street; a section of Ninth Street west of Turner Street; Keller Street from Eighth Street to Bismark; and 26 other spot overlays.

Quotables by CUEVAS

On Wednesday there will be a Blood Drawing at the Bourgeois-Stieffel-Ray American Legion Post No. 77 of Waveland.

The drawing will be from 2 to 7 p.m. at the Legion home on Coleman Avenue.

There is a serious need of blood, especially during the summer months.

The blood drawing is conducted by the American Red Cross in cooperation with the Hancock County Blood Bank.

A person never knows when they or a member of their family may need blood.

In Hancock County there are many volunteers who have been working with the Blood Bank for numerous years, because they know the importance of this vital community project.

So, do not forget the Blood Drawing on Wednesday, August 12.

On July 28, the Bay St. Louis Rotary Club celebrated its 62nd birthday.

Over the years, members of the club have been many of the business leaders of the area.

Some folks may not know this, but among the first projects of the Bay Rotary Club was the formation of the Chamber of Commerce and support of the bond issue for the seawall along our shoreline.

Today the local Rotary Club has some 75 plus members and continues to grow.

We wish to thank each and everyone who took the time to vote on Tuesday.

Remember the second primary will be held on Tuesday, Aug. 25 as there are some vital races still to be settled.

We heard some very interesting news this week along the lines of education.

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland and Hancock County School Districts are going to share the administration of Special Education in the two school systems.

This should be a tax saving to both the county and city school districts.

The school districts working together may also find other areas of working together where money can be saved.

We feel this is a move in the right direction.

The People's Business

Weekly Editorial
From Mississippi Economic Council

THE COST OF ORGANIZED LABOR
Mississippi has been fortunate in enjoying a good labor climate through a low rate of unionization, thus being spared the high costs of doing business in a heavily unionized economy.

The state placed first in the nation in its low percentage of unionization as it affects business climates in the annual Grant Thornton national survey of manufacturing climates. A high degree of unionization reduces the attractiveness of an area for industrial prospects.

A recent report in a publication of the National Center for Policy Analysis showed the enormous costs of labor unions on the U.S. economy each year.

The report said, "By creating artificially high wages, unions manage to extract about $70 billion a year out of the pockets of non-union members of the population. In the process, they cost the economy an extra $10 billion a year in reduced efficiency." Several other union activities that add to an economic loss of $128 billion a year were listed:

—The unwillingness of unions to allow wage rates to change in response to changing economic conditions cost $52 billion.

—Union work rules, absenteeism, the protection of unproductive workers, and resistance to the use of new technology cost the economy $40 billion per year.

—Lost output and damage due to strikes, violence, and disruptions cost $12 billion.

The administrative costs of bargaining, negotiating, grievances, and arbitration are $12 billion.

The publication reported that unions enjoy dozens of special privileges not enjoyed by other special interest groups. Among these are almost total immunity under anti-trust laws and the power in some states to compel employees to pay dues as a condition of keeping their jobs.

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

JACKSON—No doubt a lot of candidates for office this week were wishing that Mississippi had Louisiana's "open primary" system of elections so they wouldn't be facing two more races after the just-ended first primary.

Most concerned, of course, are Democrats who have just gone through a tough primary race, have another hard campaign before the Aug. 25 runoff, and already have a Republican opponent waiting fresh for them in the Nov. 3 general election.

Mississippi remains one of the rare places in the country where winning public office requires many candidates to go before the voters, three times in one year.

That, of course, is the result of two things: 1. The traditional requirement of state Democrats that a party nominee must get a majority vote, thus frequently necessitating a second primary, and 2. The rise of the Republican Party in the state, putting up formidable candidates for many state and local offices in the general election.

The open primary system eliminates party primaries and requires all candidates—Democrats, Republicans and independents—to run in the same primary. If no candidate receives a majority, the two highest vote-getters then face each other in the general election.

A whole lot of Mississippi voters would have found the open primary to their liking on Aug. 4. They wanted to vote for some candidates running as Republicans and some as Democrats, but couldn't vote in both party primaries.

Mississippi pioneered the idea of the open primary back in the 1960s, but has never been able to get its plan approved by the U.S. Justice Department in Washington under the 1965 Voting Rights Act.

It's bitterly ironic that Louisiana, which is also subject to the Voting Rights Act, was able to get its open primary system approved in Washington in 1975, and has been using it in all elections ever since.

At the recent session of the Louisiana Legislature, some Democrats, particularly black lawmakers, made an attempt to scrap the open primary and go back to the old party primary system. The move was soundly defeated by a coalition of Republican's and Democrats.

When the open primary plan was first pushed in Mississippi in the 60s, it was opposed by the state's budding Republican Party as a move by Democrats to rid themselves of the GOP nuisance in the general election.

But as time went on and the Republicans grew into a well-organized political threat, they recognized that the open primary might be the best way to get Democrats to cross-over and vote for GOP candidates.

That theory was proved in Louisiana in 1979 when David Treen became the first Republican governor of the Bayou State since Reconstruction by riding a crest of defecting Democrats.

The closest Mississippi has ever come to getting the open primary plan cleared was during the Nixon administration in 1971 when then Attorney General John Mitchell wrote what was thought to be approval of a bill passed by the Mississippi Legislature.

However, a three-judge federal court panel suspended the law from going into effect in the 1971 elections on grounds the Mitchell letter was too ambivalent to be construed as validating the law.

A year or so later when it was submitted to the Justice Department, the key opposition to the open primary came from black civil rights forces in Mississippi who charged it would eliminate the opportunity of black candidates to qualify as independents in the general election.

Many have come to realize in recent years that Mississippi needs to simplify its election process in order to cut down on the cost of running for office in an economically depressed state where campaign funds are in short supply.

The open primary, some observers believe, is the system best suited for Mississippi politics because it would compress the time of campaigning, eliminate the duplication of poll workers, and do away with the necessity of anyone having to wage three campaigns.

Besides, it is more in keeping with the "vote as you please" theory which Mississippians by and large seem to favor.

Derisive North cartoon upsets Bay resident

July 30, 1987
To the Editor
The Sea Coast Echo

Dear Sir:

When I first saw the picture of a Marine with many ribbons on his chest and pointing at them and saying: This one is for lying - This one is for shredding - This one for covering up - This one for being made a scapegoat by the Administration, I was completely demoralized by a picture like this.

I felt anger - shame - remorse.
To have a publication that I had great respect for to print a picture like this was demoralizing.

To my knowledge there are no ribbons for lying - shredding, etc. There are ribbons and medals for bravery (Silver Star) and for being wounded in combat (Purple Heart) and these are some of the medals that are in the possession of Col. North.

I must say I feel more comfortable having Col. North protecting me in my comfortable home in Bay St. Louis than I would having the person who drew this picture protecting me.

Respectfully,
Dr. Robert P. Akers

Hancock School Board moves in a positive direction

To The Editor
The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir,
I would like to commend the Hancock County School Board on selection of an architect for the $6.6 million building program.

It is my understanding that the Hancock County School Board would have contracted with local architects if their fees would have been competitive.

The board has wisely approved awarding the contract to a qualified architect and also saved the taxpayers approximately $40,000.

One way of examining the excellent rate of 5.25 percent received by the Hancock County School Board is to compare it with Bay St. Louis' recent contract with a local architect whose services were accepted for a fee of 6.75 percent.

Hancocks contract constitutes a savings to county taxpayers of 1.5 percent.

I'm proud to see this new school board working with our superintendent, Mr. Randolph. Through this combined effort, we are beginning to see progress in this school district.

The building program, now in motion in the school district, will afford the children in this county an opportunity to achieve a successful education and open doors to greater choices.

Our children have suffered too long in an environment that has not been conducive to learning.

I have heard a few people complain that they should have been given an opportunity to vote on the issue. I feel the same way. However, our school board could not legally call for an election because of the law that was implemented by the legislature during the 1986 session.

The last school bond issue was passed in 1959 to build Hancock North Central. During this span of time, the central portions of the county have dramatically increased in population.

The shift in population has made it necessary to move the location of the present high school a little further south to serve the best interests of the students according to the population density.

I think the excellent interest rate bid of 7.25 percent received on the bonds is a vote of confidence by the financial institutions interested in investing in the future of Hancock County.

They know that Hancock County and South Mississippi is a rapidly growing area.

Parents, business and community leaders share with the superintendent and school board the challenge of this changing society.

Let's all join hands and work together for the future of our children and Hancock County.

Dear Sir,
Statement of Opinion
Subject: Sam Perniciaro
We, Margaret and Willard Gavagnie, would like our opinion of Sam Perniciaro to be made public.

Sammy is a devoted family man, outstanding public servant and a treasured friend.

His tireless efforts have brought much progress to Hancock County.

He is never too busy to listen to his people. He is proud of his county!

We consider ourselves very blessed to have him and his family as our friends.

No way do we feel he has done us or any other citizen of Hancock County an injustice, but rather has served us honestly and efficiently.

We pray and ask you to pray also that his future be to continue to serve Hancock County and to enjoy the rewards of his labors.

Thank you,

IN CONGRESS

By Cong. Trent Lott

I was pleased to announce last week that the Navy has selected Ingalls Shipbuilding in Pascagoula to make the repairs to the U.S.S. Stark, the guided missile frigate which was hit by two Iraqi missiles last May while on maneuvers in the Persian Gulf.

This announcement is a real credit to Ingalls because it is a direct award, not a competitively bid contract. Navy Assistant Secretary Everett Pyatt told me that it means the Navy thinks Ingalls can do this job—can do it fast, can do it within the money, and that the result will be excellent work.

When I met with Pyatt and Navy Secretary James Webb soon after the attack on the Stark, I assured them that Ingalls could do the job quicker and at less expense than any shipyard in the country.

The Stark presently is sailing under its own power in the Atlantic for the east coast of Florida and its homeport of Mayport. Soon after it arrives there, Ingalls will begin plans for the necessary repair work and the purchase of materials. Finally, the Stark will be brought to the shipyard where about $50 million will be spent to repair her structural damage and restore her weapons systems.

This award is good news for South Mississippi for several reasons. It comes at a time when Ingalls Shipbuilding is experiencing somewhat of a valley in employment. We have a number of significant contracts in the pipeline, including the Aegis guided missile cruisers, the DDG-51 guided missile destroyers and the LHA amphibious assault ships which will be very good for employment in 1988 and 1989. This award, however, means immediate work for the shipyard.

I fully expect the national media to record the Stark's sail out of Pascagoula after she undergoes overhaul. And when they do, they will be recording a testament to the efficiency of the workforce and the management at Ingalls and to South Mississippi as a whole.

When the Stark was wounded, it was Ingalls Shipbuilding which the Navy called on, over all the other shipyards in the country, to restore her and send her back to the fleet. That fact presents a positive profile of Mississippi to the rest of the nation, and we have good reason to be proud.

Supervisors plan joint meeting with hospital board to discuss emergency room contracts

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors is planning a special meeting with the Hancock Medical Center Board of Trustees because a doctor has complained that an emergency services contract is not being renewed.

The matter was brought to the supervisors' attention Monday by Dr. William Bradford, who works in the emergency room at Hancock Medical Center.

Bradford said he is the only board-certified emergency medicine physician currently working at Hancock Medical Center who resides in Hancock County.

The doctor explained that he had discussed the matter with the emergency room services contractor, Dr. David Sawyer, and had been told that the current contract expires at the end of August and Sawyer has no plans to renew. "I was told this might be my last chance to work there," Bradford said.

He also stated that the staff physicians had told him that they would not work in the emergency room.

Board President A.A. Kellar said the next hospital board meeting is Aug. 18, but the supervisors would like to set up an earlier joint meeting with the hospital board and Administrator Phillip Wolfe if possible.

"It's not just this. There are other things going on there that we want to find out about," Kellar explained. Kellar stated that he is particularly interested in retaining Bradford's emergency room services because Bradford is a local resident.

"This board has always had a policy of trying to hire local people whenever someone with the skills we need is available," Kellar stated.

Wolfe, who serves as administrator of Hancock Medical Center under a contract with Hospital Corporation of America, was not at the supervisors' meeting when Bradford appeared.

However, Wolfe stated later Monday that the hospital is seeking a new contractor for emergency room services.

"It's just business as usual. We change contracts every day," Wolfe said.

He said the status of Bradford's employment in the emergency room and that of the other half-dozen physicians there would be determined by the new contractor.

Wolfe said the hospital's existing staff would not be able to cover the emergency room if no new contractor is found, but he does not anticipate shutting down the operation.

The administrator also said rumors regarding lay-offs at Hancock Medical Center were "old news" and that lay-offs occur periodically when the hospital census drops.

New employees are hired or laid-off employees rehired when the census increases, he explained.

The employees laid off are generally people who are already working on an as-needed or part-time basis or are "not essential to patient care," the administrator added.

Bradford, who also serves as the county's Emergency Medical Services director, had also expressed concern regarding the county's contribution to Mississippi Gulf Coast Emergency Services District, which he said "is being forced out by private ambulance services."

Last year, Hancock County contributed $2,500 to the district, which is coastwide and provides mostly emergency training services, County Comptroller Ken Walker said.

Walker said the district has requested $3,000 this year and the request will be considered with the rest of the county's budget requests.

In other business on Monday, the supervisors:

—Reappointed Donald Simoneaux to the East Hancock Fire Protection District Board of Commissioners; —Agreed to repay a $100,000 inter-fund loan from the seawall account to the road and bridge account on the next county docket;

—Placed an interim report from the July Hancock County Grand Jury on the board minutes;

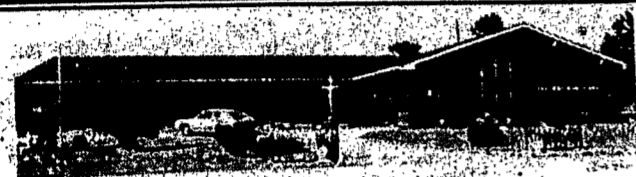

—Heard a report from Board Attorney Gerald Gex regarding continued efforts to sell the vacant Hancock General Hospital building to a Louisiana firm;

—Voted to participate in observances of two historical events: the Dec. 13, 1814, Battle of 1814 in the Bay of St. Louis and the Dec. 12, 1812, founding of Hancock County 175 years ago;

—Accepted a request from BaySide Park Fire Protection District, which asked that the millage for the district be increased to four mills, the maximum allowed under state law; and —Heard a report from Gulf Regional Planning Commission Director James Head regarding progress on efforts to decrease the amount of time expected for a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers shore protection study in Hancock County.

The board recessed day-to-day in order to be able to reconvene if necessary to hear objections to the county property tax rolls. The next regular meeting will be 9 a.m. Aug. 14 in the upstairs boardroom of the Hancock County Courthouse.

Drainage work scheduled on Hancock, Harrison streets

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Maintenance Department has scheduled two street closings for drainage improvements in BaySide Park.

Hancock Street, presently closed for a crossover culvert replacement in the section between US-90 and the BaySide Park Clubhouse, will remain partially blocked until work is completed.

can be completed, Hancock County Maintenance Superintendent Bill Johnson said.

The partial reopening was scheduled for Thursday, but may be delayed by rains earlier this week.

Johnson said a similar project on Harrison Street between West Ridge and Amite streets is scheduled to begin in about 10 days to two weeks.

Bay, Hancock school districts eye sharing special ed administration

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland and Hancock County School Districts are looking into the possibility of merging some of the administrative work involved with special education.

Bay-Waveland Superintendent of Education Roger Oge told his board Monday that he has been discussing the possibility with Superintendent of Education Terrell Randolph and with Dr. Kate Reynolds, who is director of special education for the Hancock District.

He stated that the reason the merger is being discussed is possible cost savings.

Reynolds explained Tuesday that the Bay-Waveland District is currently without a special education director and that both districts could benefit from sharing administrative personnel.

Such a move would not affect where the children in question attend school, she explained.

Most of the children in special education attend the schools in their respective district, although some with specific handicaps such as impaired hearing are educated through a consortium that includes the Hancock County, Bay-Waveland, Pass Christian and Long Beach districts.

In addition, some children are educated at home by school personnel who are paid out of district or grant funds, she added.

"This has a lot of possibilities. It would increase the amount of paperwork I have to do but it would save money for everyone involved. I'm very excited about this idea," Reynolds explained.

In addition, combining some of the programs, such as the in-home teaching, could increase the number of students involved and would allow state funds to be used rather than local monies.

A larger program could make obtaining grant money more likely as well, she added.

Another service that might be shared is that of a psychometrist, a specialist in testing, who could be a staff member rather than an outside consultant.

The Bay-Waveland Board also discussed possibilities Monday of reorganizing the district's guidance counselors.

Oge suggested that the two counselors be organized as a Department of Guidance and Testing and be given additional testing duties to help monitor achievement, spot potential drop-outs and deal more directly with students.

The department personnel would report to the superintendent and his assistant superintendent rather than directly to school principals.

Four board members, Betty Diboll, L.D. Carter, Charles Benvenuti and Reginald Robinson voted for the move. Linda Penrose voted against the idea.

Benvenuti said he felt having the counselors report to the superintendent of education would be better than having them report to the principals.

"I've been on this board only a short time, but from what I have seen when we have dealt with disciplinary matters involving individual students, I understand that there have been some problems because the counselors have the good of one child in mind while the principal has to consider all the students in his school," Benvenuti said.

Penrose, however, stated that she feels that the guidance counselors in the Bay-Waveland district should operate in the same manner as all guidance counselors along the Gulf Coast, and that she understands that at least one in the district has not. She did not specify the task involved.

In other business Monday, the board:

—Agreed to hire Lisa Hinson as part-time food service secretary;

—Authorized the superintendent and two counselors to test any junior high student one year or more behind grade level and determine appropriate placement;

—Adopted a policy regarding school-community relations;

—Accepted bids for cafeteria supplies;

—Discussed the options of setting up a seven-period school day as opposed to the present six-period school day and the possibilities of offering additional elective courses and advanced placement for seniors;

—Heard a report from Oge on a state-funded summer feeding program, which supplied 16,044 meals during June and July to children 18 or younger;

—Approved setting up a teachers' advisory committee at each school in the district; and —Agreed to request proposals for a cafeteria-style insurance plan. The board's regular meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. Monday in the superintendent's boardroom at Bay Senior High School.

WAITING FOR RETURNS—People sit on the steps of the Hancock County Courthouse shortly after 7 p.m. Tuesday waiting for election returns. In addition, a standing-room-only crowd packed the upstairs board-room until a malfunctioning air conditioner sent some of the people into the downstairs hallway in search of a cool spot. (Staff photo by Dena Bisnette)

Touro Diabetes Support Group sets meeting

The Touro Diabetes Support Group invites diabetics and their families to meet every third Saturday of the month from 10 a.m. to noon in the hospital's second floor Coliseum Room.

The next meeting will be Saturday, Aug. 15.

The Support group, which is free and open to the public, is led by the medical director of Touro's Diabetes Management Center and a diabetes social worker.

Other experts in the field are featured as guest speakers. A question and answer discussion follows each speaker and refreshments are served. For further information, call 1-504-8376.

We Believe In South Mississippi

From the earliest days of its existence, Hancock Bank has looked ahead to what South Mississippi could be. Then it has followed through, providing the personal leadership and the financial means to make the dreams possible. Every decade of service has been marked with challenges and progress.

From opening day deposits of $8,277.41 in 1899 to assets in excess of $885 million some 88 years later, Hancock Bank stands as a partner in the growth of South Mississippi.

Through natural disasters, such as Hurricane Camille and financial setbacks like the "Great Depression", the Hancock Bank has been here providing strength, stability and leadership, restoring the hopes and dreams for South Mississippi residents.

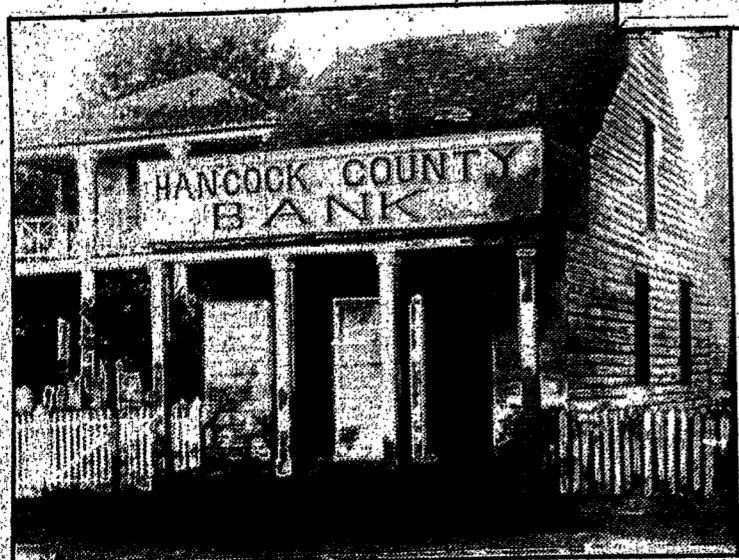

At Hancock Bank we measure our success by the people we serve each day. To put it simply, your success is our success. That's why, at Hancock Bank, we believe in South Mississippi.

AFL-CIO, Red Cross jointly sponsoring blood donor drive

MOBILE, Ala.—The American Federation of Labor-Congress of Industrial Organizations (AFL-CIO) and the American Red Cross have joined hands to attack the chronic blood shortages that occur each year in the months of January and August.

The National Labor Blood Donor Drive set for Aug. 1 through Sept. 15, hopes to accomplish two main objectives: to increase blood donations from drives at union shops and to identify and recruit new blood donors from among the rank and file of AFL-CIO unions.

"Union members are already among the most faithful and productive groups of blood donors," said Chris Marston, Mobile Area contact for the AFL-CIO drive. "But, we need new donors to assure adequate supplies this August."

As participants in the National Labor/American Red Cross Blood Donor Drive, union members in the Gulf Coast Region are being asked to donate blood during August as union members.

They have also pledged to help organize blood drives among workers not now being reached and to encourage all members of their various locals to become regular blood donors.

"This labor blood drive is a national and local partnership effort of the unions of the AFL-CIO Community Services Liaison with the Mobile Area United Way.

"Unless chronic blood shortages in August can be overcome, the sick and the injured will be endangered," he added.

A number of blood drives are already scheduled in August at industries with active union participation. In addition, any union member who gives blood at any Red Cross Donor Roster.

"This will permit union members to participate in blood drives at their churches or civic organizations and still allow their donation to count towards the overall labor campaign goal," said Sarah Erickson, director of donor resource development for the American Red Cross Gulf Coast Region.

Union members will roll up their sleeves to give blood will be helping patients in 52 hospitals in Mississippi, Alabama, Florida and Georgia served by the American Red Cross, Gulf Coast Region.

Coast Red Cross, GMH sponsoring weekly drive

MOBILE, Ala.—The American Red Cross and Memorial Hospital of Gulfport announced the addition of a weekly blood donor site for the Mississippi Gulf Coast area.

Effective August 5, Memorial Hospital, located at 4500 13th Street, will house a new weekly site for blood collections. Blood will be collected each Wednesday from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. Red Cross volunteers from the Mississippi Gulf Coast Chapter will staff the site.

According to Sarah Erickson, director of donor resource development, "We hope this cooperative venture will help to improve the blood supply for the area by offering another location for our regular donors and new donors."

Blood will continue to be collected at the Mississippi Gulf Coast Chapter on Mondays, from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. and Fridays, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. The Chapter is located at Fernwood and Dubuys streets in Biloxi.

Individuals wishing to make autologous donations (for their personal use during scheduled elective surgery) may also use either of these donor locations. Autologous donations must be approved and documented by the physician's office in advance of donating.

For more information, call the Red Cross at 896-4511.

Mississippi gets more Canada geese

JACKSON— Just give Joe Stone and the Department of Wildlife Conservation a little time, and Mississippians may be seeing more giant Canada geese flying our friendly skies.

From June 15 through early July, the state wildlife department obtained approximately 1,700 Canada geese for release in various areas of the state. The honkers came from wildlife agencies in Illinois, Michigan and Canada.

"These geese will supplement existing resident goose flocks on Sardis Reservoir, Ross Barnett Reservoir and the Tenn-Tom Waterway," Stone said. "And we have established new flocks in four Mississippi Delta counties."

He indicated that nine new release sites containing approximately 50 birds each were released on catfish ponds located in Humphries, Leflore, Sunflower and Yazoo counties.

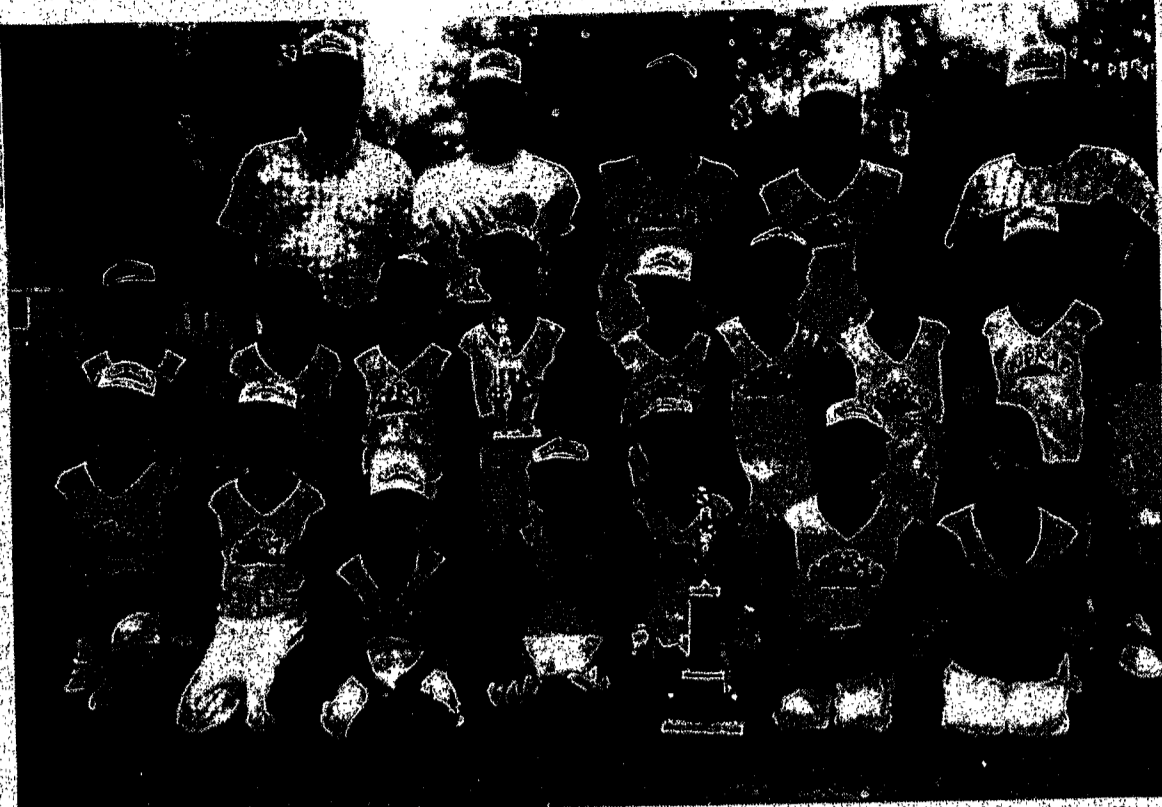

Some 727 geese received from Canada and Michigan were added to the Sardis Waterfowl Refuge flock in Lafayette County. And Ross Barnett Reservoir north of Jackson got 330 additional birds from Illinois added to its flock, bringing the total there to about 600 birds. Bay Springs Lake and Pools A and D along the Tenn-Tom Waterway became the new home for another 193 Canada geese. Fourteen geese were placed on the Pascagoula Wildlife Management Area in George County.

S. T. Hayburn of Oxford, chairman of the five-member Mississippi Commission on Wildlife Conservation said that agency personnel have worked long and hard on the logistics, transportation, and setting up the proposed release sites so things would go smoothly.

"Now that these geese are here in Mississippi, state sportsmen, bird watchers, and other wildlifers will be able to enjoy observing these beautiful birds on a year-round basis."

Hayburn said that plans are already underway to obtain additional giant Canada geese in 1988 and future years to supplement Mississippi's existing flock.

Back Bay of Biloxi to open for live bait shrimping Friday

Joe Stone, executive director of the Department of Wildlife Conservation, has announced that the Commission on Wildlife Conservation, has authorized under state statutes, has approved the opening of certain waters of the Back Bay of Biloxi to live bait shrimping.

Stone pointed out that only live bait shrimpers will be allowed to shrimp in these waters and they will be strictly monitored by Bureau of Marine Resources enforcement officers.

The Office of Saltwater Fisheries, Bureau of Marine Resources, Department of Wildlife Conservation, indicates that the waters opening Friday at sunrise will be north of the railroad bridge at Back Bay of Biloxi and east of the Interstate 10 bridge where it crosses the same body of water. All waters to the west of the I-10 bridge will remain as closed waters.

"All existing rules and regulations set forth in ordinances of the Mississippi Commission on Wildlife Conservation governing live bait shrimping shall be in effect and will be strictly enforced," Stone said.

Horse stalls arrive at state fairgrounds complex

JACKSON— Last Tuesday 400 premium metal horse stalls arrived at the Mississippi State Fairgrounds complex.

"These new stalls will allow Mississippi to compete nationally for major horse shows," said Commissioner of Agriculture and Commerce Jim Buck Ross.

"Mississippi's horse industry needs and deserves this type of support," he said.

According to Billy Orr, director of the State Fair Commission, this is the first time in many years that the fairgrounds has had enough stalls to accommodate the growing Dixie National horse shows.

Ed Gary, horse promotion specialist with the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce, said "the new stalls are the beginning of a great day for the horse industry in Mississippi." The horse stalls are being put up in the City Steel Building on the State Fairgrounds Complex.

Matters of Health

When a child drowns or nearly drowns, a thousand "should haves" race through the minds of the individuals involved. "I should have never left Sara in the baby pool alone." "Why didn't I take a course in CPR?" "We should have locked the gate to the pool."

Hindsight is always 20-20, but prevention is the key to fewer swimming accidents.

Each year, thousands of children die in drowning accidents and many more suffer from the physical and emotional trauma of near-drowning incidents. Drowning is one of the major causes of death for children below the age of four, yet it is preventable.

The Drowning prevention Committee in Tucson, Arizona offers the following advice for a summer of swimming fun:

—Never leave a child alone in or near a pool or body of water, including the bath tub.

—Young children should never be considered water-safe despite their swimming skills.

—Access to a pool should be limited by locked doors or gates.

—Children should be taught proper swimming safety rules.

—Don't let children rely on floaters, inflatable arm bands or inner tubes to prevent accidents.

—Keep toys, especially tricycles, away from docks and pools.

—Don't let anyone, regardless of age, swim alone.

—During social functions, assign an adult to oversee the swimming activities.

—Don't permit children to scream for help playfully. This may cause confusion when, and if, a real emergency arises.

—Don't let a child swim immediately after eating.

—Don't allow swimming during electrical storms.

—When boating, always make sure all passengers wear approved life vests.

—Never drink alcoholic beverages while participating in water sports.

—Always keep rescue equipment in a specified place.

—Never let children play with rescue equipment.

—If you own a pool, become trained in cardiopulmonary resuscitation. A CPR instruction poster should be kept at the poolside.

—Keep a cordless telephone near poolside so you never have the leave children in the pool unsupervised.

Many parents have enrolled their children in "water adjustment" and "water baby" classes to help them adjust to being in water and to equip them with survival skills in deep water. However, the American Academy of Pediatrics offers the following recommendations:

—If parents wish to enroll their infant in a water adjustment class, it should be on a one-to-one basis with a parent or other responsible adult. Group swimming instruction should be reserved for children more than three-years old.

$125,000 payout at world championship

Clear your calendar, make arrangements with your spouse, hire a babysitter or get the VCR primed to see what clearly is the superbowl of this bass fishing season: The Bass Masters Classic XVII. Tune into The Nashville Network on Aug. 15 at 3 p.m. (EST) and see the 35 top bass pros battle it out for a $125,000 payout with a first-place purse of $50,000.

Johnson Pro Team representatives will include David Wharton, Jerry Rhyne, Jack Chancellor and defending champion Charlie Reed. Evinrude Pro Team member Ken Cook will also compete. Chancellor is a former Classic winner. Johnson Outboards is a proud sponsor of the event, which attracts hundreds of journalists and thousands of fishing fans from throughout the country to witness a week of competition and related activities.

Sponsored by the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society (BASS), the Classic will be held on the Ohio River in Louisville, Ky. About half of the TNN special will be devoted to live coverage of the final weigh-in and selection of the world champion bass angler. Highlights of the Classic competition and features will round out the special.

The Classic is the culmination of the year-long Bassmaster tournament trail in which the nation's top professional bass anglers have competed for more than $2 million in cash and prizes.

The only way a pro can earn an invitation is to finish in the top 25 slots when BASS tallies the total weight each angler caught during the year's Bassmaster Invitational. The top five amateur anglers, selected through tournament competition in BASS Inc.'s international grassroots organization, are invited to compete against the pros.

Although some tournaments organized by BASS Inc. award larger purses than the Classic, none conveys as much pride and status to the winner as the Classic. "The value of this tournament is not based on dollars," explained Helen Sevier, president of BASS Inc.

"It's based on the pride of being the best bass fisherman in the world; and on subsequent monies that the champion earns for product endorsements, sponsorship contracts and public appearances—a value that some of the top anglers place at well over a million dollars."

A new extension handle from OMC Parts & Accessories fits all late model Johnson and Evinrude tiller control electric positioning motors. It's made of aluminum with a nylon sleeve that locks over the tiller handle of the motor, staying secure, without screws or bolts. It adds 18 inches of reach to the handle.

BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought To You By Jim Henrie

One of the strangest incidents in golf history happened in a tournament in Houston several years ago when golfer Bob Rosburg made a HOLE-IN-ONE THAT WASN'T A HOLE-IN-ONE... Rosburg hit a drive off the 12th tee but the ball hooked badly, hit a tree and bounced crazily the wrong way—not to the 12th green—but to the 13th and right into the cup...It was one of the rarest of golf shots—a hole-in-one in the wrong hole!

One of the strangest pennant races in big league baseball history happened in the National League in 1964... Philadelphia was in first place 135 days that season, then didn't finish first—while St. Louis was NEVER in first place on ANY day in 1964 till Sept. 29, and they won the pennant!

Here's one hard to believe, but it's true...When Roger Maris set the all-time big league record for most home runs in one season, by hitting 61 homers in 1961, he had ONLY ONE HOMER THE WHOLE FIRST MONTH OF THAT SEASON!...Maris, hit only one home run the entire month of April that year, then hit 60 homers from May on.

WOOD DESTROYERS

Powder post beetles are second only to termites as destroyers of seasoned wood. There are several varieties of this beetle and they all damage wood the same way and require the same control measures.

The beetles eat sub-flooring, hardwood flooring, joists, sills, plates and interior trim in buildings. They also damage other wood products such as furniture, equipment handles and ladders.

Control the beetles by spraying or painting infested wood with recommended insecticides. If you want to spray, use a compressed-air sprayer. Hold the nozzle about 3 inches from the wood surface so the insecticide can penetrate the wood.

Treat small areas next to paint or wallpaper by applying insecticide with a paint brush. Remember to thoroughly wet the wood surface with insecticide for effective treatment.

LAWN MOWER SAFETY

Reports from our hospital emergency rooms across Mississippi show lawn mower accidents lead the injury list during the mowing season. The lawn mower is a cutting machine, so use it correctly to avoid losing a finger or foot.

The cutting blade is the main hazard. When you start a push mower, brace it by putting one foot on the mower. Keep the other foot away. When starting a riding mower, keep both feet away.

Don't clean a grass-clogged mower while the engine is on. Clear the lawn of sticks, stones, wire and other debris which can be picked up and hurled by the blade. Don't leave a mower running, especially when children are playing in the yard. Never add fuel to a running engine.

CHECKLIST FOR CAR TRIPS

How many of you have been all set to leave on your family vacation when your car breaks down? Maybe this has happened before. Next time, before you take your family on a trip, check your car for trouble spots and prevent those problems, delays and frustrations.

Drain and flush the radiator. Check for leaks, weak hoses and loose connections. Check the thermostat. Refill the radiator, using a good-quality coolant.

Check belts for wear, cracks and slippage. Belt slippage can cause annoying squeaks, engine overheating and insufficient car battery charging. Inspect tires for uneven wear and be sure the brakes are in good condition.

Maintain battery fluid at proper levels and also check the air conditioner refrigerant level. If some time has passed since you last had your car tuned, invest in a professional tuneup. Your car will run more smoothly and you'll enjoy your vacation because you won't have to worry about your car.

TICK AND FLEA CONTROL

Summertime brings out a lot of pests, with ticks and fleas being right at the top of the list. Both of these pests can survive for long periods of time without feeding, and both have a high reproductive rate.

A good selection of materials is available for control of ticks and fleas. You can also choose the formula of application—either an emulsifiable concentrate or a wettable powder.

In controlling infestations, remember to get good coverage of the area to be treated. About 3 to 10 gallons of insecticide per 1,000 square feet of infested area is adequate for control.

During 90-plus degree weather, flea larvae will be deep in grass thatch or in other areas of adequate moisture.

If you have a particularly difficult flea problem, you might want to apply insecticide early in the morning or late in the afternoon.

The quicker you apply the treatment the better off you will be because hot temperatures and direct sunlight can affect the residual capability of the insecticide.

FLY CONTROL IN LIVESTOCK

House flies and stable flies may become major problems in your livestock operations during the warm summer months. The key to fly control is manure management. Manure and other rotting organic matter should be properly disposed so that flies cannot breed in it.

Insecticides are a very important part in controlling flies, too. They can be applied as long residual sprays, short residual aerosols, baits or mists and as feed-throughs. It is best to use a combination of these different formulations in a fly control program.

Bay Cove Marina planning in-water boat show, sale

Bay Cove Marina in Bay St. Louis is seeking exhibitors for its "In the Water Boat Show" Sept. 4, 5 and 6.

"In addition to marine dealers and exhibitors, we have provided a special section of our show for individual boat sales," said Fran Trombley of Bay St. Louis, show coordinator.

"If you have a boat that is 21 feet or under with trailer and is in show condition, we welcome you to exhibit with us," she added.

Individual spaces are 15 feet by 25 feet, featuring lawn chairs, umbrella or tent cover.

Exhibit space fee is $30 for 3 days. If a sale is made during show time, the boat must remain in its place until closing time that day.

The procedure for removal of the boat is as follows:

1. Seller must present Bay Cove Boat Show Staff proof of sale in order to obtain a removal sticker.

2. Buyer must enter show through exhibitors gate on Engman Avenue to hitch up.

3. Seller, buyer, and boat show staff security guard must all three be present upon buyer removing boat.

4. Buyers must exit with boat through exhibitor gate on Engman Avenue.

Registration should be completed no later than Aug. 15.

Exhibits must be completed and set up by 6 p.m. Friday to open for "pass" night.

Admission on this night by "pass" only. Show hours will be open to the public on Saturday from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m., and on Sunday from noon to 6 p.m.

Boat must be sterling clean; chrome polished, mildew removed from cushions and canvass; windshields clean and free of cracks, clean bottom and properly tagged, Trombley pointed out.

Sea trials for individuals will be allowed Sunday morning from 7:30 to 11 a.m., she noted.

Closing of the sale must be conducted at the exhibit space or privately at an appointed time and date after the show closes on Sunday.

Compliance with dry storage agreement will be finalized at set-up on Sept. 4.

For further information contact Trombley at 457-9257.

UNO dedicates new building

The University of New Orleans dedicated its newly completed $20 million engineering building July 23, bringing to fruition a six-year effort by industry leaders, legislators, and UNO officials to improve facilities for engineering education on the lakefront campus.

The nine-story building which houses many specialized instructional and research laboratories which will serve both academic and community needs, will be fully operational at the start of UNO's 1987 fall semester, Aug. 24.

Dr. Fritz E. Dohse, founding dean of the UNO College of Engineering, was principal speaker at the dedication. Dohse, who resides in his native West Germany, retired from UNO in 1984 after 24 years of service to the university.

A guiding force behind the development of engineering at UNO, Dohse was instrumental in the discipline's growth from a department of engineering science in the 1960's to a college in 1980. It was under his stewardship that plans for the new building were conceived and developed, culminating in ground-breaking ceremonies on June 15, 1984.

Other participants in the dedication were Dr. Allen A. Copping, president of the Louisiana State University system of which UNO is a member; Thomas J. Pople, president of the UNO Engineering Development Fund; William J. Lannes, chairman of the UNO Engineering Advisory Council; Charles W. Wall Sr., Chairman of the UNO Fund and a member of the steering committee for the School of Naval Architecture and Marine Engineering (NA&ME); UNO Chancellor Cooper R. Mackin; and Dr. Aly A. Mahmoud, dean of the college since 1985.

Rabbi Robert Loewy of the Congregation Gates of Prayer gave the invocation and benediction.

The building, located on UNO's main campus between the dormitory on Leon C. Simon Boulevard and the science-engineering building on Founders Road totals 100,000 square feet, including classrooms, instructional and research laboratories and offices for the college's departments of civil, electrical and mechanical engineering as well as NA&ME.

It features a number of state-of-the-art specialized facilities, including one of the nation's few university-based marine engineering instructional and research laboratories, a marine model basin which will enable the testing of ship models and offshore structures.

The basin, called a towing tank, will serve not only as a learning laboratory but also be available for research and contract projects for the Louisiana shipbuilding and offshore platform industries.

Located on the building's ground floor, the towing tank is 120 feet long by 15 feet wide by seven feet deep. It has provisions for shallow water testing, including underwater windows, a specially leveled bottom with simulated current, and a shallow water wavemaker.

In addition to the towing tank on the ground floor there are a number of laboratories, the auditorium, student lounge, locker space and a courtyard. Classrooms are located on the third floor and faculty-staff offices on the eighth and ninth floors. The remaining five floors provide specialized laboratories of the college's various divisions.

Other specialized research facilities include an anechoic chamber which absorbs all microwave reflections, a structures laboratory, an hydraulic and water resource laboratory, an optics lab, and a CAD/CAM (computer-aided design/computer-aided manufacturing) lab. UNO's engineering research programs include controls, computer applications, power systems engineering, electronics and digital design, heat transfer, CAD/CAM, fluids, structures, hydraulics, off-shore structures, ship modeling, stress analysis, laser technology, and ellipsometry.

Dean Mahmoud said that in addition to undergraduate and graduate degrees in engineering, the college offers a host of short courses, conferences and training programs tailored to local industrial needs.

"Our faculty has developed in-plant training programs for degree and non-degree personnel for local industries. With our new facilities, we will be able to expand our services to these and new industries in the state," he said.

Designed by the architectural firm of Stanley Muller and Associates, the building has an exterior of cast stone, accented by quarry tile, glass block, stainless steel and insulating glass. The exterior was chosen after careful study of the sun-screening abilities of the reflective insulating glass and of the building facade.

Energy conservation measures applied in the building's electrical systems include ceiling fans in classrooms, the use of energy-saving fluorescent lamps and ballasts, and remote-control switching of large blocks of lighting, controlled from the university central plant. Fire protection methods include a sprinkler system, stairwell pressurization system and a smoke control system.

An internal system of computer cabling and outlets has been installed and connected to the university central computer system. Using the latest in fiber optics technology, it allows transmission of data throughout the building. Facilities for transmitting and receiving closed-circuit television have been provided in all classrooms, selected laboratory areas and the auditorium. These have also been connected to the campus-wide television system.

The design team for the building was directed by Stanley W. Muller and included Jose M. Fernandez, project architect; Morphy, Makofsky and Masson, structural engineering consultants; Harold Falter and Associates, mechanical engineering consultants; Schroeder Associates, electrical engineering consultants.

The general contractor was I. A. Jones of Harahan. Robert Latorre, JNO associate professor of engineering, designed the towing tank.

Engineering began as a degree curriculum in engineering science at UNO in 1965. Traditional programs in electrical and mechanical engineering were added in 1972, followed by civil engineering in 1974. The former department of engineering sciences was elevated to a school of engineering in 1973 and to a college in 1980.

The program in naval architecture and marine engineering was launched in 1981. All of UNO's engineering disciplines are accredited. Over 1,700 engineering degrees have been awarded by UNO in the past 19 years.

Ron Hunt, an infielder who played with various National League teams holds the record for getting hit by pitched balls.

NEXT WEEK'S HOROSCOPE

Weekly Tip: Make important calls.

Aries (Mar. 21-Apr. 19) Your work load has become tremendous, so ask those you trust for some help. You'll be surprised how willing they will be.

Taurus (Apr. 20-May 20) Make sure you keep your word; this will insure your credibility in the future. You may feel a little run down after many summer activities, so rest up.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) If you do your best at whatever you undertake, you will have no regrets. Clear your mind and make room for important data headed your way.

Cancer (June 21-July 20) Those in your life who love and care for you can help ease the "summer spots" you don't underestimate their value to you.

Leo (July 21-Aug. 22) Don't be surprised if things are going smoothly now; you deserve it. Watch for interesting new people in your life whose ideas are different from yours.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be sure you accomplish everything with your special flair. A shining new person is liable to come into your life soon. Romance is on the horizon.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You've been putting off your family duties, and they aren't taking kindly to that. Get yourself over to see relatives, and show them they're appreciated.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Be sure you use your clever intuition when dealing with new acquaintances. There is a tendency in you to be a little too trusting, so be careful.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Why not splurge on yourself now? Go ahead and indulge in that shopping spree. But do not to stray far from home.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you are feeling a little down now, rest assured it's only temporary. It's a good time to dive right into those projects you've been wanting to tackle.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) If procrastination has left you with a pile of things to do, get at them now. Then take a little trip.

Pisces (Feb. 19-Mar. 20) Social engagements have you booked for a while, but be sure other practical affairs don't go undone. Rely on yourself now to get the job done well.

If you were born this week, it's in your character to be steadfast and dependable. This virtue doesn't go unnoticed; those around you are appreciative, even if they don't verbalize it. Sometimes you may feel you are too giving, but this is because you don't take well-deserved time to yourself. See if you can't correct this. © 1987, McNaught-Synd.

Le Blanc's School of Swimming awards 103 certificates at close of 12th season

Le Blanc's School of Swimming in Bay St. Louis closed its most successful summer session on July 17 following a record enrollment.

Although plagued with many postponements due to rain, problems with students who had to resign because of summer illnesses and even one who had to discontinue on account of a dog bite, the swim school managed to teach more students to swim than ever before.

In 12 summers, Le Blanc's School of Swimming has taught more than 1,300 children to swim.

In addition to Clyde John Le Blanc and Helen Key Le Blanc, instructors this year were Cathy Allison, Sabrina Kersanac, Jeffrey Battle, Brian Plunkett and Jeanne McCollister.

Students who were outstanding, earning the Le Blanc's Junior Life Saving Certificate, were Tessa Metzler, Jami Schaefer, Tracy Collins, Lisa Pope and John Genin.

In addition, students who earned certificates for the first session were: Advanced Certificate - Heather Haas, Adrienne Carter and Chris Genin; Intermediate Certificate - Brandy Frommeyer, Hugh Flores, Amanda Kingston, Trey Randall, Jace Bourgeois, Andy Grussendorf, Christopher Estrade, Matthew Remel and Charlie Hooker; Introductory Steps of the Intermediate Certificate: Eddie Cook, Ashley Frommeyer, Weldon Frommeyer, Danah Malone, Elise Lagarde, Billy Kenny, Kevin Estrade, Chari Strong and Billy Green.

Beginner's Certificate: Mac Metzler, Brandy Hill, Matthew Powell, Nicholas Miller, Adam Miller, Tim Buchanan, Timothy Rayburn, Michelle Kenny, Ricky

Preliminary Steps to the Beginner's Certificate: Jeremy Shiyon, Courtney Carver, Jill Belsome and Jennifer Edgecombe.

Those acquiring certificates for the second session were: Advanced Certificate - Bernard Sy, Lisa Pope, Anna Pavolini and Jennifer Thomas.

The Intermediate Certificate: Jessica Carver, Shay Coss, Ashley Artigues, Ida Medley, Kelly Koenenn, Bernice Sy, Desiree Egloff, Michael Ulrich and John Ludlow.

Introductory Steps to the Advanced Certificate: Ben Coward, Ron

Wang, Allison Walsh, Mandy Mackey, Beverly Sy, Josh Arrowwood, Lance Pope, Brittany Lee, Felix Pavolini, Ashley Piazza, Ricky Trudell, Brandy Hill and Miranda Lewis.

Those earning the Beginner's Certificate: Steven Taylor, John Fish, Thelma Eslick, Jessica Bivens, Chris Harris, Tristan Egloff, Courtney Ulrich, Jesse Battle, Lucinda Perniciaro and Hope Watkins.

And finally, those who earned the Introductory Steps to the Beginner's Certificate: Amy Taylor, Samantha Neal, Jill Belsome, Donnie Moran, Jo Ann Wang, Casey Koenenn, Colleen Bartholomew, Brian Sy, Guy Allerman, Heather Wilkerson, Dana Kimmel and Jonathan Reich.

Le Blanc's School of Swimming is co-owned and operated by Clyde John Le Blanc and Helen Key Le Blanc.

USM Commencement set Aug. 8

Internationally-recognized medical authority Dr. Arthur C. Guyton, chairman of the Department of Physiology and Biophysics at The University of Mississippi School of Medicine, will be the speaker for Ole Miss summer commencement exercises on Saturday, Aug. 8.

More than 450 students are expected to receive undergraduate, graduate and doctoral degrees at the 2 p.m. ceremonies in C. M. "Tad" Smith Coliseum. Immediately following the exercises, Chancellor and Mrs. Gerald Turner will host a reception honoring Dr. Guyton and the graduates in the Lamar Law Center atrium.

Dr. Guyton is a leading authority on circulation and cardiovascular physiology and is the author of "Textbook of Medical Physiology," the most widely-used medical physiology textbook in the world and the only major single-author text. The Oxford native and Ole Miss alumnus discovered the demand of tissues for oxygen determined the amount of blood pumped by the heart, disproving the long-held notion that the heart itself controlled cardiac output.

Among his many awards are the Merck, Sharp and Dohme International Award (1984), given every two years for excellence in hypertension research; the Founders Award from the Southern Society for Clinical Research (1979), given annually to a "great American scientist."

UNO to hold parent orientation

The University of New Orleans will host a Parent Orientation for parents and other family members of new students admitted for the fall semester Thursday, Aug. 13. The program will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. in the University Center Ballroom. The purpose of the Parent Orientation is to help family members and the new student adjust to the challenges of college life. Those at-

Girl Scouts set August season kickoff

Kickoff for the new season of Girl Scouting in Hancock County will be Saturday, Aug. 22 at Friendship Park in Piquette. Gulf Pines Girl Scouts in Area 5 (Hancock and Pearl River Counties) will register.

Mississippi Music Company will demonstrate band instruments.

A calypso performer accompanied by a troupe of clowns will entertain.

Computer music, singing, games, and the formation of a rhythm and jug band will also be featured.

Chairmen of the event are Cathi Holland of Piquette and Crystal Burrows of Pearlington.

Other members to the committee from Hancock County are Sherry Schwabacher, Glenda Coss, and Alice Holmes of Bay St. Louis and Gayle Egan and Bethany Burrows of Pearlington.

Girls from kindergarten through twelfth grade, who are interested in being Girl Scouts this year, should contact their former leader or call Crystal Burrows at 833-7884 or Alice Holmes at 467-5710, or arrive at Friendship Park at 9:30 a.m. Aug. 22.

Registration will require $4 fee; $1 fee for the event. Bring lunch.

tending will receive information concerning university policies and procedures, and student services; will meet a number of key resource people at UNO; will be provided with an opportunity to meet informally with other parents who share common concerns; and will be introduced to UNO's new Parents Association.

Governor's Manion guide placed in Hancock library

The Mississippi Library Association and the Friends of Mississippi Libraries, Inc. recently placed copies of the book "An Illustrated Guide To The Mississippi Governor's Mansion" in the Hancock County Library System in recognition of Senator Gene Taylor's and Representative Walter Phillips' service to libraries as state legislators.

"The books have been placed in the library system to honor the contribution of state lawmakers to the support of libraries across the state," MLA President Pamela Lambert said.

The 30-page book was written by Helen Cain, a furniture historian who serves as a consultant at the Governor's Mansion, and Anne D. Czarniecki who was curator of the Governor's Mansion from 1980 to 1983 and is published by University Press of Mississippi.

Fully illustrated with color photographs of the furnishings and decor at the Governor's Mansion, the book features the public rooms and gives information about the distinctive collection of furnishings and objets d'art.

Opportunities outlined for specialized home economists

HATTIESBURG—Professional opportunities for specialized home economists are expanding each year, according to a University of Southern Mississippi family resource management specialist.

"A home economist is a credible source of information, and whether the job is teaching consumers how to keep their electricity bill down or testing a new kitchen appliance in a manufacturing laboratory, the specialized home economist provides increased credibility to a business organization," said Virginia T. Rowland, an assistant professor of family life studies at USM.

Rowland said entrepreneurship possibilities within the business world have prompted students to actively pursue a Home Economics in Business degree offered by the USM School of Home Economics—the only such program in the state. The four-year program, begun three years ago, includes a general home economics curriculum coupled with courses in business and communications.

She said the program is designed for students who want to be employed in private industry, those who don't want to teach, those who want to deal in goods and services for profit, and those who have more of an interest in business and how it relates to families or households.

"We encourage students to choose a minor field of study that complements their career goals," she said. Noting that Home Economics in Business graduates often are employed as customer relations assistants, consumer educators in government or equipment companies and public utilities, as financial planners, account representatives, consumer reporters with the media, or as appliance researchers, demonstrators or marketers.

"The whole idea of home economics is to take what we have as families and interact wherever it may be necessary to achieve our goals," Rowland explained. "The Home Economics in Business program promotes goods and products for profit, as compared to providing traditional home economists as teachers and educators."

The field, she said, often involves working with people, making public appearances and traveling, but unlimited opportunities are available for those who want to branch out in accounting, management, marketing and personnel management.

"The program is for those more interested in the marketplace

U.S. Choice W.D. Brand Beef
...enjoy the Big, Bold Goodness of the West!

Nothing compares to the taste of a U.S. Choice steak or roast from Winn Dixie. We carefully select our beef from heavy western corn-fed livestock, and age it naturally for tender, juicy perfection. Then it's expertly cut and trimmed for the best flavor and value. You can see the difference, and taste the difference. No other beef sold is quite the same...or quite so good.
